School subjects

1

In English schools, Math, English, Science and physical education are compulsory subjects. This means that all the students must study them. Besides, each student must choose a number of optional subjects (history, geography, arts etc.)

compulsory
obligatory

optional

Extra-curricular Activities

2

There is a strong tradition of extra-curricular activities in English schools. Teachers stay after school to help organise sports, drama, music and other activities. English students often perform the plays they study to the rest of the school. Music is also important. Many schools have their own orchestra.

I like watching films in the cinema.
I like watching plays in the theatre.

Sports and Sports Day

3

Games are usually compulsory in English schools. There are often matches between different schools or different classes. Popular sports are football, rugby, basketball, hockey and tennis.

On sports day, parents come to watch their children in different competitions: the high jump, the long jump, etc.

Lunch in or outside School

4

Schools in England have a reputation for serving chips and boiled vegetables. Today, in many schools fast food and snacks are replacing traditional school dinners. Schools have a dining hall. Many teenagers prefer to bring a cold lunch or "packed lunch".

During the lunch break, they eat their lunch in the dining hall or outside when the weather is fine.
